The Hornets are up against the Vipers. The Hornets are down by one point. There are 6 seconds left in the game. The crowd is going crazy. The cheerleaders are nervous and are supporting their team. The band is playing a song and they're concentrating on their music.

Next to the band you can see the Hornet's coach who is folding a sheet of paper in the shape of an "O." He has removed his suit and is yelling to Henry, "make the shot!"

Henry is a player from the Hornet's who is on the offensive side at this point. Henry is slowly dribbling the ball and looking at the basket. Across the court is the coach's wife who is jumping up and down from the bleachers.

There is a "crazy lady" sitting right below the coach's wife. She's pulling her hair. She has a very confused look on her face and she's yelling, "WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR? SHOOT THE.....(in slow motion).....B...A....L.....L!"

A police officer, who is a huge fan of the Hornet's is eating a donut and paying very close attention to the game. The only sound being made is coming from the basketball player's shoes and the dribbling of the ball.

Henry decides to go for the shot. Sweat is dripping from his forehead. Henry slowly shoots the ball. His hands are still in the shooting position and the crowd is silent. Their eyes are attentively following the ball without a single blink. There's a lot of tension at this point.

Then, the ball slowly goes in to the basket, and the buzzer goes off. The Hornet's have won the game! The people on the bleachers are going crazy. Henry is being carried by all his teammates. Suddenly the coach's wife runs down the bleachers. She gives her husband a hug and congratulates him on the victory against the Vipers. It was a night to remember!
